

The Department of Politics and International Studies (POLIS), in collaboration with the Von Hügel Institute (VHI) and the Cambridge Migration Research Network invites you to a two-day workshop:

European Migration and Refugee Crisis: Contested Politics of Social Integration and Identity

Photo credit: Maros Simon

The workshop will discuss refugee and migration politics with focus on identity, politics, religion, nation, racism, political attitudes and gender in the framework of European national policies. The aim of the workshop is to carve out key characteristic and conditions of the problems caused by the worldwide refugee crisis, and to identify central areas of necessary research with regard to the politics of integration and identity.

Organisers:

Dr Sara Silvestri City University London and University of Cambridge;

Dr Elif Cetin University of Cambridge;

Vlado Kmec University of Cambridge and University of Groningen;

in partnership with Prof Heidemarie Winkel University of Bielefeld.

For the programme and further details visit:
www.vhi-st-edmunds.cam.ac.uk

Thursday 23rd June 3.45pm to 6.30pm

Friday 24th June 9am to 5.30pm

Garden Room, St Edmund's College, Cambridge
(THURSDAY)

POLIS, ARB building, West Rd, Cambridge
(FRIDAY)

The workshop is open to the public, however, as places are limited for Friday, registration is required. Please confirm your presence with Vlado Kmec vk287@cam.ac.uk by June 16.

Registration is required for Friday only.

This workshop is supported by the DAAD Cambridge Research Hub with funds from the German Federal Foreign Office.